COURSES

(Includes courses taught and/or developed for inclusion in catalog.)

University of Connecticut

ENGL 2049W Writing through Research. Course devoted to considering and putting into practice the differences between, uses of, and methods for primary and secondary research, as well as writing new arguments in conversation with existing ones.

- ENGL 2055WE Writing, Rhetoric, and Environment. Course centered on analysis of and community-based practice in writing about complex environmental phenomena and issues for non-specialist audiences, with attention to questions of rhetoric, representation, and ethics.
- ENGL 2635E Literature and the Environment. An introduction to human relationships with environment through the lens of literature, with an eye specifically toward how ideas about “nature,” race, and gender have influenced each other in an American context.
- ENGL 2637WE Environmental Justice Writing. Seminar that investigates writing across a variety of genres in response to asymmetrical environmental impacts on working-class and people of color in the United States. Community-oriented writing-intensive version also developed.
- ENGL 3003W Writing about Climate. Topical seminar in writing studies that explores the rhetorical challenges of writing about climate for a general audience and puts into practice strategies for communicating climate changes effectively.
- ENGL 6850 Keywords in American Studies: Nature. Rigorous historical and literary examination of the cultural work performed by the term “nature” as it organizes social identities along vectors such as race, gender, and sexuality, and variably links them to nonhuman environment.

University of Massachusetts Dartmouth

- ENL 099 Critical Writing & Reading Workshop. Developmental support for students in ENL 101.
- ENL 101 Critical Writing & Reading I. First of two-course first-year writing sequence. Analysis and synthesis-focused course that introduces students to academic reading comprehension and writing strategies. (Online and honors syllabi also developed and taught.)
- ENL 102 Critical Writing & Reading II. Second of two-course first-year writing sequence. Analysis, synthesis, argument, and revision-focused course that develops students’ academic writing strategies. (Online syllabus also developed and taught.)
- ENL 200 A History of Hip in American Lit. Traces the development of countercultural capital in the United States from the Harlem Renaissance to the present, especially as it has involved transits and appropriations across lines of race and age. (Online syllabus also developed.)
- ENL 200 American Politics, Literary Disgust. A consideration of disgust as a prominent literary tone or theme, as well as its role in representations of various political and social exclusions in the United States. (Online syllabus also developed and taught.)
- HON 202 Environmental (In)Justice. Honors seminar investigating asymmetrical environmental impacts on people of color in the United States from the colonial era to the present, with a service-learning component. (Online syllabus also developed and taught.)
- HON 301 Honors Research Across Disciplines. Interdisciplinary preparation for honors thesis project, including ideation, research methods and ethics, presentation, revision, and time management, culminating in submission of prospectus. Instructor serves as de facto project advisor for all students until advisor is selected and approved. (Online syllabus also taught.)

University of Kentucky

- ENG 230 Introduction to Literature: The Walking Cure. Examines American wilderness narratives from the early twentieth century to the present, especially as they have encoded cultural assumptions about race, gender, and nation.

- ENG 251 Survey of American Literature to 1865. Survey of American literature from pre-Columbian texts through the Civil War, covering key literary developments during the period and the social conditions in which they occurred—namely, colonization, the revolution, slavery, emancipation, and the emergence of women’s rights. (Teaching assistant.)
- WRD 110 Composition & Communication I. First of two-course first-year multimodal writing sequence. Emphasizes critical thinking and information literacy in an academic context.
- WRD 111 Composition & Communication II. Second of two-course first-year multimodal writing sequence. (Online syllabus also developed and taught.)
- WRD 112 Accelerated Composition & Communication. A compressed version of the two-course multimodal first-year writing sequence (WRD 110 and 111).
 >> “Feminist Alliance” film project by Sydney Hendrix, Archana Jeeji, Carson Mullins, and Kristen North selected for publication in 2017 WRD Spring Writing Gallery.
- WRD 203 Business Writing. Instruction in writing and research for business and government workplaces, with emphasis on communicating with multiple audiences in a variety of professional situations from an ethical stakeholder (rather than shareholder) perspective.
 >> “Kentucky Farm Chain” site by Sara Newman and Megan Semall received Honorable Mention for Group Digital Project at the 2016 WRD Excellence in Composition awards.
- WRD 204 Technical Writing. Instruction and experience in writing for science and technology, with emphasis on clarity, conciseness, and effectiveness in preparing letters, memos, and reports for specific audiences. (Online syllabus also developed and taught.)
